San Francisco Baykeeper

7. Baykeeper is a regional non-profit public benefit corporation organized under the laws of California in 1989, with its principal place of business in Oakland, California. Baykeeper's mission is to defend San Francisco Bay from environmental threats and hold polluters and government agencies accountable to create healthy communities and help wildlife thrive using science, litigation, and advocacy. Baykeeper patrols on the water, investigates polluters, and strengthens and enforces laws to protect the Bay. Baykeeper is dedicated to preserving, protecting, and defending the environment, wildlife, and natural resources of San Francisco Bay and its tributaries for the benefit of its ecosystems and communities.

8. To further its goals, Baykeeper actively seeks federal and state agency implementation of federal and state water quality-related laws. As necessary, Baykeeper directly initiates enforcement actions on behalf of itself and its members, and enforcement of the Clean Water Act and other environmental laws is part of Baykeeper's mission.

9. Baykeeper is structured around two categories of participants: board members and individual members. Baykeeper's bylaws provide for a maximum forty-member Board of Directors which possesses all decision-making authority. Only Baykeeper board members have the right to vote on the strategic direction of the organization.

10. All Baykeeper staff are counted as individual members, as well as any individual making a financial contribution in any amount or an equivalent in-kind contribution of time within the preceding two-year period is defined as an individual member.

11. Individual members do not have the right to vote, but they receive monthly electronic newsletters and optional print newsletters, may submit comments or recommendations regarding Baykeeper's policies or strategies, and may be represented by Baykeeper in proceedings addressing issues regarding the San Francisco Bay-Delta watershed.

12. Baykeeper has approximately 2,500 individual members, most of whom reside in the San Francisco Bay Area and use San Francisco Bay and its shoreline for recreational, educational, conservation, and scientific purposes.

13. Baykeeper has members that use and enjoy the waters all around San Francisco Bay, including the waters described as impacted by plastic pollution. One of Baykeeper's priorities is ensuring that the Clean Water Act (NPDES) permits for facilities discharging pollutants into the Bay are strong enough to protect the Bay. Baykeeper also uses its resources to combat the impacts caused by the continuing proliferation of single-use plastic. These efforts include policy advocacy at the state and local level within California to reduce plastic pollution; organizing volunteer beach cleanups to remove plastic from creeks, rivers, and the shoreline before it enters San Francisco Bay; investigating industry and local government practices that may lead to plastic pollution; and providing public education and engagement initiatives, including monitoring and research, such as trawling for microplastics in the Bay and measuring shoreline plastic pollution.
